PREFACE

The preparation of the Book which is now submitted to the Class has been a pleasurable work. The hearty coöperation of all has made it really a Class Book, as well as a Class History. Much is due, also, to the valuable suggestions received from the Secretaries of the Classes of 1903 and 1905, and to the constant help of the Dean of the college, and Professor W. B. Bailey. To Mr. Thompson, of the Alumni Weekly, for his aid, to C. W. Somers for drawings, and to the men who have assisted in the statistical and subscription work, we express thanks.

In a work of this nature errors of fact are very likely to occur. History means accuracy, and it is urged that each man in the Class, upon noting any error, will immediately communicate with the Class Secretary.

After the graduation of the Class, frequent correspondence will be the surest means, not only of keeping each member in touch with all others, but of insuring accuracy of future Class Records. Each man is requested to inform the Secretary regarding change of address, and anything of general interest to 1906, concerning himself or other members of the Class.

APRIL 16, 1906.

1906 FRESHMAN CLASS GROUP.

Kindness of the Randall Studio.

What were our first impressions of Yale and New Haven when we descended from our train and timidly asked the street-car conductor if this car went near York Street? We have a dim memory of gray skies, cold drizzles and great crowds in which we seemed to be the only ones who did not know everyone else and carry pipes in our mouths. But it did not take us long to feel that at last we could be called among the number of those fortunate beings, college men, and even among that still more fortunate body, Yale men. By the time we had acquired felt hats from Chase's we could walk Chapel Street, arm-in-arm, with the best of them, and fondly imagine we were disguised as upperclassmen. In the daytime, that is; at night this quickly-gained mantle of assurance fell off as rapidly, and we crouched in our rooms in terror, quaking in our shoes each time the dread cry of "Fresh, put out that light," reached our ears, or the tones of "Wake, Freshmen, Wake," seemed to swell in volume as it grew nearer. On September 25th, this body of four hundred units for the first time met together, marshalled by torch-bearing, "Y"-sweatered giants, fell in at the end of the procession, and gave in hearty, if not regular accord, the Yale cheer. In the Hopkins Grammar School lot, Whitcomb, Thatcher and Banks went down in defeat in wrestling bouts with the Sophomore champions. But this rather inauspicious opening of our glorious career did not dampen our enthusiasm, for the Freshman Class of 1906 had started its life at Yale, and we were members of it.

History of the Class of 1906.

If this short sketch is to be at all intelligible, and if any comprehensive idea of what we accomplished Freshman year is to be gained from it, I must altogether disregard chronological order, since our activities were so varied and numerous that if they should be given in the order they occurred, the reader would find himself struggling to wade through the mass of data, and would emerge at the end with a sigh of relief, and know no more about what his class accomplished than when he began. To take up our literary activities then, Greely,

FRESHMAN FOOTBALL TEAM.

Stimson and Wallis were busy burning the midnight oil and sending in contributions to the Lit. and Courant; some were accepted by the former, more by the latter. Flocks of disheveled News "heelers" were turned loose to harry an unoffending college, ride recklessly around on antiquated bicycles, and worry upperclassmen. At the end of the first race, Perrin came out successfully; in the second competition, Brown, Van Tassel and Wilson were elected to positions on the Board. Magee went on the Glee Club Christmas trip in the capacity of first tenor. On the Apollo Glee Club we were represented by Sprague and McGee. McGee was later in the year transferred to the University Glee Club. On the Apollo Banjo and Mandolin Clubs, Dustin, Banks and Fitch were enrolled. The Academic men on the Freshman Glee Club were Magee, Walters, Dickinson, MacLane, Scarborough, Ely, Hamlin, Squire, King, Warren, Monzani, Halsey, Sherrill, Drew, Mills, Stevens, Kochersperger, Turner, Terry, Macgurn, Tileston, Tuttle, Brinsmade and La Vie; on the Mandolin Club, H. Brown, G. T. Brown, Ferry, Van Tassel, Bruce, Culbertson, Embree, Freeman, Phelps, Westcott, Young, Turner, Wescott.

FRESHMAN BANJO AND MANDOLIN CLUB.

From the Dramatic Club trials, Brooks and Stevenson emerged successfully, though neither took part in the play given that year. A glance at the names of members of the Freshman Religious Committee reveals some startling information, but the list will not be printed in this history for fear of covering with confusion some members of the McCarthy, Friday Night Club, or the Hogans. Space does not admit that this list be continued further; it could be carried on ad infinitum, for there was scarcely an organization in college in which you could not find a member of the Class of 1906.

History of the Class of 1906.

In athletics our record is equally lustrous: Shevlin and Rockwell not only played splendid games through the entire season as end and quarterback on the Football Team, but also were inscribed in the All-America team by unanimous consent of football critics. Rowland and Marcus represented the Freshman Class on the University Hockey Team. The University Baseball Team made use of O'Brien at second base throughout the season, and of Shevlin for a short period when the track season was over. Shevlin won the hammer-throwing event in the dual track meet with Harvard, and gained second in the same event in the Intercollegiate Meet. Under the management of E. White and Magee as Secretary, the Freshman Football Team went through the season with one defeat up to the time of the championship games. It defeated St. Paul, Betts, Hotchkiss and Andover. The next week Andover revenged herself, and in the following two games the team lost to the Princeton Freshmen, 5 to 0, and to the Harvard Freshmen, 10 to 22. Hoyt, Corning, Stevenson, McGee, Twichell, P. Smith, Turner, Moorhead, Heckscher, Downing and McClintock received numerals for football. The Freshman Hockey Team was captained by Dousman. The Baseball Team had as its officers, Turner, President; Rockwell, Secretary and Captain. This team lost one of the championship series, and tied the other, winning one game with the Princeton Freshmen at Princeton by a score of 5 to 3. Rockwell, Waldo, Whittlesey, Magee, Moorhead, Dousman, Thompson and B. D. Smith were awarded numerals for this sport. W. K. Johnson managed the Freshman Crew, with Fulton as Secretary. The Freshman Eight easily defeated Harvard in the annual race at New London. Those who received the class insignia were Chase, Gregory, Low, Weeks, Warner, Heckscher and Ely.

On Washington's Birthday two of our Class maintain, with reliable witnesses, that they fought their way to the Sophomore Fence and held their position in spite of all efforts of the enraged Class of 1905. Whether this legend is true or not, the fact remains that we all struggled, pushed, tramped through slush, and bore away the marks of Sophomore canes, for the honor of 1906. Of less doubtful origin is the story of the great victory we gained over that same class on Omega Lambda Chi night. The great struggle was a tug-of-war between these two classes, and none of us will forget, if we die of old age, the thrill of pride and joy of victory that surged through us as we felt the rope start in our direction; first slowly, inch by inch, then gradually gaining speed, we swept from the Campus to York Street with the rope in our possession, a few stubborn Sophomores still clinging to it and being dragged through the mud on their backs. Throughout our entire college course, frayed pieces of this rope have been festooned about our gas fixtures. But better than any of these days of glorious victory was the day when Wilson McClintock received the fence in our behalf; examinations were over, pipes with 1906 numerals in every mouth, and joy in every heart that now we were to begin our real connection with Yale as Sophomores.

Our life together at Yale is nearly passed; there are many scenes and pleasures throughout our course that we cherish in memory; but there are few scenes we can look back on with such fondness, and few pleasures which are so undiluted, as those of Freshman year. Freed by our situation from all restraint on the part of upperclassmen, with not enough connection with the University to keep us busily engaged in its work, but with enough to make us learn to love it and want to know it better, Freshman year stands apart from the other three. What if we did worship false gods? They were not false to us—they were robed in their blaze of light, and the mantle of glamor was over them so we could not see their feet of clay. And though we have come to see that the gods are of earth, yet the mantle of light can never be quite torn off, and we still have a tender affection for those old idols of ours. We have come to worship other gods by this time, but alas, our youthful dreams were rudely shattered in many cases so that our idols now can never draw the mantles quite close enough to hide the feet of clay. So we will ever keep a tender affection for the folly and fun, and even the mistakes of Freshman year, when we first became sons of Eli, and learned to love the old College.

And then, the school-boy.

Fresh from the apron strings of division officers and with some of our number not yet weaned from the fostering care of the Freshman Faculty, Nineteen Hundred and Six toddled forth—a most precocious infant—in this, the second year of its collegiate life. With our naturally winning ways we at once proceeded to take a fall out of the latest addition to the household of Father Eli—the Freshmen—for both Daskaloff and Morrison won their bouts in the wrestling contests. Thus, having successfully survived our début before the lime-lights of publicity, the play was on, and henceforward many and various were the activities in which we took part. So many, in fact, that the writer must resist the temptation “to blossom forth a bit” and confine this review strictly to an enumeration of the stellar rôles and the men who played them.

The curtain rose to the strains of “Pro Yalensis.” Dustin and Banks appeared on the Banjo Club, while Sprague, Magee, Arms, Cowles and Kochersperger, midst the ranks of the Glee Club, showed up well for us behind the footlights. After this burst of song and merriment, thoughts naturally turned to our first award of social honors, and the Sophomore German Committee, consisting of B. D. Smith, E. White, Stevenson, Turner and Magee, was chosen. To further fortify ourselves against the enticements of Lenox Hall, Class Deacons became an essential. So the four handsomest men in the Class were chosen to lead the opposing forces of Dwight Hall, and Gurley, McClure, Banks and Magee easily qualified. Thus, well provided for, socially and religiously, 1906 began to do things in athletics. On the gridiron "Rock" tore off the plays in his own inimitable style, while "Shev" (literally and figuratively) "killed" the ends. In the handicap fall games, Fawley won the broad jump, with Banks occupying third place. Weeks, Chase, Ely, Gregory and Low rowed on our victorious Class Crew in the Fall Regatta, and a little later in the year Flinn, Marcus and Rowland began to rough it up a bit on the Hockey Team. At the same time the basketball squad included Anderson and Humpstone.

THE SOPHOMORE GERMAN COMMITTEE.

Then came the organization and speedy disorganization of the Wranglers and the Wigwam, chiefly notable for the arduous labors of "Colonel" Alden as Secretary. Speaking of the "Colonel" reminds us of that famous football team which practiced every afternoon in front of the Hutch with "Moose" as head coach. Strange to relate, but one game was ever scheduled—at Wallingford—and then George alone showed up. O Tempora! O Mores! . . . During the fall, too, the spirited McCarthy Club valiantly upheld its motto—"Capillum in Pectore," and e'en on one memorable occasion, decorated with fitting ceremonies the manly breast of one of its members—the future manager of the Tennis Association.

But we must hasten on. Nimble Thespians tread the stage—Bouscaren, Andrews and Markoe were in the French Play, while Stevenson, Brooks and R. W. Wescott materially aided the Dramatic Association in its presentation of “New Men and Old Acres.” . . . The lights blaze up in an unusual burst of brilliancy—then the cold, grey dawn of the morning after:—and our first Prom. was a thing of the past. Then came the Apollo Clubs, with Fitch, A. L. Westcott, Field, Bruce, Van Tassel, Phelps, Embree, W. D. Harris, Coursen, Dickinson, A. W. Andrews, Mills, Turner, Ely, Brinsmade, Sherrill, Higgins, Walcott and McGee—in fact, all the disturbing element in the Class—making more or less (chiefly the latter) music in the air. Greely and Newberry were elected to the Record, and (after many sacrifices to the God of the Strenuous Life) Wolfe and Sands to the News.

In debating, 1906 furnished the third Sophomore ever on a University team—Bergh winning the Thacher prize for the best speaker in the trials, and debating against Princeton. Banks lead the Apollo Banjo Club, A. L. Westcott assisted the Gym Team, and the Gun Club had to set up new targets for Sturges and Borden. In the realms of scholastic endeavor—the C. Wyllys Betts prize for excellence in English Composition went to W. G. Robinson; Bruce won the Barge Mathematics Prize, with Warren second and Fawley third; Bergh and R. M. Anderson were awarded honors in Sophomore elocution. The University Club began to pass into our control, Corning being elected Treasurer and Turner, Secretary. Likewise in the Dramatic Association, Stevenson became Vice President and Brooks, Treasurer. In the Musical Clubs Association Stevenson was elected Manager, with Sprague, Recorder of the Glee Club. Dustin, occupying a similar position in the Banjo Club, was said to be of the “highest” authority. Shortly after this Harrington was elected to the Record.

From this enumeration of varied achievements we would turn for a moment to the foundation of the firm of Gurleyburg and Warnerstein, but time “presses,” and we must hasten on a brief journey through the Hutch. Here, on the fifth floor, is that den of creative genius from which developed the Codille Club, with its watchwords—"Fair," "Stinking's good," etc. (For further information as to origin apply to Lout, Phormio, Scratch, Married Man or King Goodhart.) But descending farther still we come to that marvellous suite, to the furnishing of which "Moose" contributed an organ, "Wils" a canary bird and "Shev" a combined bulletin and blackboard. On the latter, midst batting averages and Codille remarks, we find from newspaper clippings that Shevlin won the hammer-throw at the Harvard meet, got second in the Intercollegiates, and then went abroad on the International Team. MacKay pitched on the Baseball Team, and knocked a home run at West Point. (N. B. The ball is yet to be recovered.) O'Brien and Bruce Smith also helped the team out. In the Inter-Class games, Shevlin, Stevenson, P. T. White and Banks secured places.

Towards spring the various elections began to be held. Flinn became Captain and Goodyear, Manager of the Hockey Team; E. White was elected Assistant Manager and Banks Secretary of the Football Association, and in the Baseball Association Turner and Magee were chosen for similar positions. In track Sands and Cowles were elected; Moorhead became Secretary of the Crew. Dwight Hall claimed Magee as Vice President, Twichell as Secretary, and P. T. White as Librarian. Greene, after corraling all ads east of the Rockies for the Courant, became Assistant Business Manager, and the News, after taking Hall and Squire on the Board, organized with H. R. Wilson, Chairman; Perrin, Business Manager; Van Tassel, Assignment Editor. Then, in a burst of frenzied oratory, McClintock disposed of the Fence to the younger generation.

So passed Sophomore year. Try as a historian may, he can only hope to call to mind certain events in a more or less mechanical way. The true pleasures—the games at Mory's; the singing, summer evenings, on the Hutch steps; and, above all, the loyal friendships—these can live only in memory. And may that memory ever be green! In Freshman year we learned what class spirit meant to a disunited mass of individuals. Despite our separation during Sophomore year by a lack of proper dormitory facilities, that spirit still survived, yea even flourished. But most important of all, it developed into something larger—that indefinable something which we call “Yale spirit,” whose essence is, that when a man can, he must.

“The hours have struck that ne’er shall come again,
We hear the great world calling and we go;
God help us to make good in thoughts like men
And manly action, what to Yale we owe.”

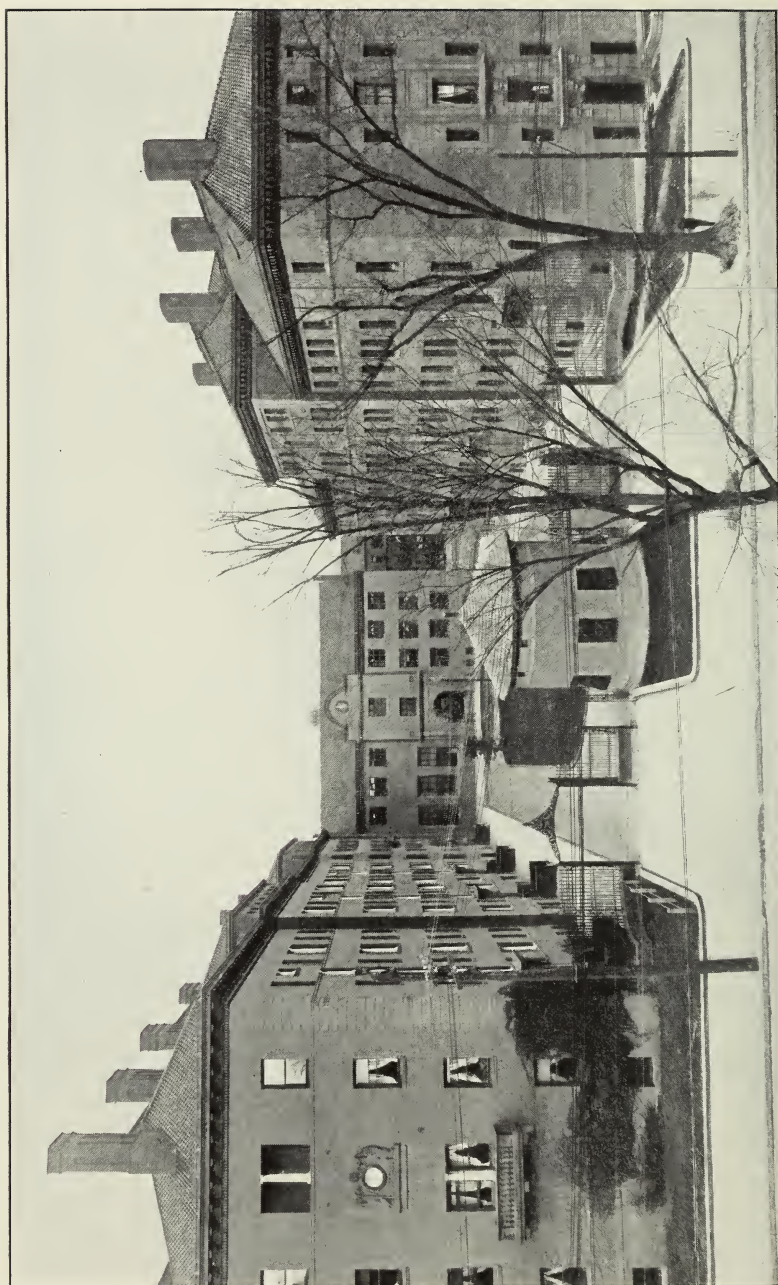

CHESTER BURROWS VAN TASSEL.

And then, the lover.

As the weaver from his machine sees only the warp and woof of a tapestry and knows not the pattern on which the beholder gazes, so Junior year, or any other period of college experience, appears much differently to us now that we are gazing on this collection of retrospects known as the Senior Class History, than it did when those events were in the making. To pursue the simile still farther, as each beholder gains different impressions from the same design, some declaring that color rich which others consider tawdry, some being led afar into fields of imagination while others find nothing but an unsuggestive outline, so Junior year has left a different impress on each one of us.

However different these impressions may have been, it is in the deep underlying experience which was common to us all, that Yale life owes most of its value. All the familiar Yale lessons which preceding classes have learned, and which, let us hope, will be instilled into classes to come, were more deeply felt in Junior year, I take it, than in any other year. Though for a harrowing while we were apt to place too much stress on personalities, looking more for manner than achievement in our classmates, and trusting more to promise than to performance, yet at the end of Junior year we all felt that Yale, indeed, had led us up to all the promise of Senior year that had been made to us by those who had already tasted of its joys.

THE BERKELEY OVAL.

Junior Year.

Just why it is that Junior year receives from successive classes fewer votes than any other for the most enjoyable year of the course, is a reason which we believed to be inherent in certain things peculiar to Yale. Nevertheless, we all feel that the lesson in democracy, in fair judgment of our fellows, in seeking for the things which run deep and overlooking the externals, are indeed cheaply purchased at the price of any heartburnings enduring but for a minute.

The first occasion on which the Class gathered together in Junior year was on October 12, when after waits enlivened by the Codille harmony whose sweet music was just beginning to cast its spell through the Class, the Junior Prom. Committee was elected as follows: B. D. Smith, chairman; J. A. Stevenson, floor manager; S. Turner, E. White, W. S. Moorhead, J. G. Magee, G. Ely, H. R. Wilson and D. A. McGee. On October 26, the Class made a notable reform, by voting to allow Sheff. representation on the Prom. Committee. This change will mean much to the future life of the University.

Saturday, November 12, we journeyed down to Princeton, the wise ones with ham sandwiches in their pockets, to see Yale defeat our ancient friends from New Jersey by the gentlemanly score of 12 to 0,—decisive but not exultant. Saturday, November 19, we put away thoughts of such meagre things as ham sandwiches, and entertained our fair friends with hot birds and such, while our triumphant team again insisted on the propriety of 12 to 0 as the correct score, and Harvard provided the object lesson. On that team none was more famous, more admired for his playing, nor more talked about by the girls, than our own Tom Shevlin, unless it was that Prince Henry of Navarre who needed no helmet to act as an oriflamme when plunging in the thickest of the fray—the Napoleon of football, Foster Rockwell. Two other Juniors who donned the sacred “Y” for the first time were Rex Flinn and Lydig Hoyt. The submerged eleventh at the bottom of the pile, who nobly bore the brunt of the season’s development, had for members from our Class, Erwin, Heaton, Leggett, Mills, Stevenson, Turner, Twichell, P. White, MacKay, Prendergast and Schermerhorn.

The aforesaid Rockwell no sooner deserted the turf of the football field than he struck the boards of the basketball floor.

THE JUNIOR PROM.

Junior Year.

With Humpstone, Anderson, Barrows, Jamison, Fawley, Leggett, Ogle, Barton, Weyman, Reed, and Monzani he began trying for that wonderful Christmas trip through the hospitable South. It may not be out of place to say right here that on March 23 the basketball team wound up a successful season by electing Rockwell captain. From a mere hankering to go on the Southern trip, to captain in the same year shows what strict training will do for a man in basketball.

Leaving the athletic for the aesthetic, we note that on

THE JUNIOR PROMENADE COMMITTEE.

Tuesday, December 13, the French Club produced, in College Street Hall, Molière's play, "George Dandin," with notable success. C. E. Andrews and F. H. Markoe, Jr., were leading members of the cast, while J. B. Brinsmade as assistant manager contributed largely to the success.

On Monday, December 12, occurred the one loss from our ranks of Junior year. Stanleigh Winslow Macgurn died on the afternoon of that day at the infirmary from appendicitis. That respect for his personality spread as far as his acquaintance was but natural in view of his manliness and simplicity of character.

After everybody had recovered the use of his right forearm from the hearty greetings and "Bully, thank you. How was yours?" which was not peculiar to Junior year, on returning from vacation, the Class settled down to give the best Prom. which Yale has ever had. So all the papers said that year, and so they say every year; but we all know which year really was the best. "Settled down" to do itself proud at the Prom. is hardly the correct phrase, however, any more than it is to say that a duck has to settle down to get along in the water. If ever a class took to fussing like George Alden to football, that class was 1906 in its Junior year. With characteristic enterprise the committee had contrived, through the kindness of Mrs. Thomas G. Bennett, to have the Junior tea held in what is probably the handsomest residence in New Haven. The Prom. concert on January 24 served to give us a pardonable sense of pride in our classmates, when we discovered to our astonishment that the cards hurled from the Freshmen above were sad recasts of the original wit which we had once hurled at 1904. On the 24th came the great event. Those who were there are glad of it, those who were not there are sorry for the omission. That ought to make the problem of whether we are going to have a Prom. or not, easy to coming classes.

Just whether one of our most popular classmates was really one of us or not, was a question which had been troubling the football authorities much since the close of the season. Their trouble, however, was solely because of the nicety in the technical question involved, not at all because our class lacked extraordinary material for any honor which Yale football may bring with it. The question which had been troubling the football authorities was settled in a manner distinctly Yale-like, and the record of Captain Shevlin, who was elected on January 25 of the Junior year, has left a notable impress on the list of things done well according to the Yale standard. With a green team, and,—but why relate history or chronicle opinion which are common to everyone acquainted with the record of the Yale football team under Captain Tom Shevlin.

On January 27, new honor was brought to 456 Fayerweather when the other roommate, Bruce Smith, was elected captain of the golf team. On the same date one of the old familiar characters of Yale tradition passed away—"Pop" Smith, who even in his failing years had made himself a familiar character to us, will follow a Yale team through no more seasons. With his death, even though we were so much less acquainted with him than had been preceding classes, we felt that Yale had lost one of the figures who, though singly almost strangers to us, yet collectively stood for Yale tradition and all that it implies.

Though the Berkeley Oval, once known to fame, had been cut up into building lots, the Codilles soon revived the name by giving the local circus an entirely new fame. What with foolish bands and queer processions, life on the oval became a seat at a perpetual three-ring circus. That flippancy might not seem to reign supreme, mysterious wires were strung from White to Berkeley and along window ledges on both sides. Business was conducted on strictly modern methods, and many of us rooming near some "Central" station found it necessary to pull wires to keep up with the push. Some of the wires were attached to telegraphic instruments, whose owners perhaps foresaw that next season even the football team will be using the Morse code.

On Monday, February 20, the Class honored the following five men with places on the Lit. board, who shortly after their election organized as follows: John N. Greeley, chairman; D. Bruce, financial editor; J. H. Wallis, book reviews; John S. Newberry, memorabilia; S. M. Harrington, editor's table. In line with the characteristic common sense of 1906 the new board signalized its year by instituting that eminently sound change of having a separate competition for the business managership.

After having played victoriously the entire season the hockey team with a Junior captain and manager lost, through Harvard, an exciting game at St. Nicholas Rink on February 18 by a score of 7 to 1. Just what the team as well as the whole University thought of our captain was shown on March 9, when Rex Flinn was unanimously re-elected captain. Needless to say he immediately reappointed as manager, Goodyear. Other Juniors who distinguished themselves on the team were Marcus and Rowland.

Junior Year.

Those of us who were fortunate enough to have been at the News banquet on March 10 well know how much of inspiration was derived on that occasion.

April 5, 6, 7 saw what was perhaps the best production the Dramatic Association ever gave, A. W. Pinero's play, "The Magistrate." L. H. Tooker and F. H. Markoe, Jr., scored decisively in two of the leading female parts.

On April 10, Linonia gave over its welfare for the coming year to the following Juniors: C. H. Banks, H. Beal, L. O. Bergh, D. Bruce, G. Ely, C. W. Goodyear Jr., A. B. Gregory, I. S. Hall, W. P. Hall, E. S. Mills, W. S. Moorhead, F. O'Brien, L. J. Perrin, F. H. Rockwell, M. B. Sands, J. A. Stevenson, S. Turner, J. H. Twichell, E. White, and H. R. Wilson. The ceremony took the form of a banquet, and those who were gastronomic as well as wise were able to take in also the Dramatic Association's banquet across the street at the Tont.

On April 14, L. O. Bergh won the Ten Eyck prize in the Junior competition with a paper on "1904 in Colorado." The other contestants were: H. Beal and C. Greene, both of whom wrote on "Tenement House Reform"; C. B. Van Tassel, "Mazzini"; and A. L. Westcott, "Sam Houston." Continuing along the intellectual line, let us chronicle the work of the debating team. On December 12, it had won the Princeton debate in New Haven with a team on which Bergh served as alternate. The previous year had seen that rara avis, an Academic man on a debating team, and this year was to be no exception. Our class broke a long record in furnishing such a man.

May 5, however, Harvard won the debate at Cambridge, thereby giving the critics a chance to make comparison of Harvard brain and Yale brawn.

The springtime, however, is associated in the minds of most all of us with out-of-doors. Sailing, tennis and golf divide with the major sports of track, baseball and rowing most of our time. The former have given rise to many of the pleasantest memories which we hold of the year, while the latter have always been made at Yale a source of the utmost benefit and pleasure.

In track the Class has never been represented by very many members. In the relay games held on April 29th Yale made a most remarkable record, winning the one and two-mile relay races and losing the four-mile event to Michigan by a bare two yards. Shevlin and B. Moore were the only Juniors. Previous to this, however, on April 15, the Juniors had won the Inter-Class Meet. Injudicious people might whisper that the points were supplied by Sheff. Juniors, but that is no fact to be mentioned in this book. On Saturday, May 13, the track team journeyed down to Princeton for their annual practice, winning this time by a score of 80 to 24. B. Moore won second in the 880 yards run, Shevlin second in the hammer throw and P. White first in the shot put. The following Saturday Stevenson and P. White both won their "Ys," the former winning second in the high hurdle and the latter second in the shot put. Shevlin also secured second in the hammer throw. Yale was again victorious by a score of 65½ to 38½. At the Intercollegiates we lost the meet, as the world knows, by 2½ points. But the world does not know that the only apparent reason for the loss is that Mike Murphy passed a nigger funeral on his way down to the Trials, Friday. It was on that Saturday that we first learned that Yale athletic teams were to lose their guide, philosopher and friend. Shevlin won third place in the hammer-throw in the Intercollegiate Meet.

The crew started its official season with the Spring Regatta on the 13th of May. Though our club crew defeated the Seniors, we lost in the final heat in the championship race to the 1908 third crew. On the Annapolis crew, which according to telescopic searches through the fog was defeated, Weeks pulled his usual strong oar. When the crews went up to New London, Chase, Weeks, W. D. Harris and Low went along with them. The part taken by these men in the final race of the year, when one of the best crews Harvard ever had was defeated, is too well known to need chronicling.

Amid all the proud stories of Yale athletics, there is none which we like more to linger over than that of the baseball team of 1905. The team that can come back after an 18 to 2 defeat by Princeton is worthy of the highest possible praise. On that team none was more distinguished for steady playing than Frank O'Brien, who at the close of the season was unanimously elected captain. Bruce Smith and Erwin also played their parts as befitted members of such a team. Scores that should be printed indelibly on every Yale mind are the 3 to 2 and the 8 to 5 victories over Princeton and that wonderful tie game followed by the winning of the baseball championship when Harvard was defeated 7 to 2, on June 27 at the Commencement game.

Along with Commencement came some of our happiest memories of Yale. The laments of Seniors that they had not, like us, yet another year, made us realize that these gladdest are just as truly, the shortest years of life. For the first time, perhaps, we began to look at past years at Yale in the golden haze of perspective which will predominate in the future. Then it is that events assume their personal true proportion; the trivial becomes the important, and the commonplace, once of seeming prominence, finds its true level. If this short sketch may furnish a palette, however imperfect, from which each may sketch his own recollection, then its mission will have been fulfilled.

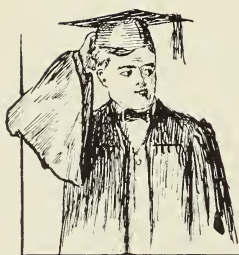

Such thoughts began to come to us for the first time at the end of Junior year. But we did not consider them so earnestly then as now, for our minds were turned to another year in the spot where we had first learned to appreciate one another.

“For joy of one day’s voyage more,
We sang together on the wide sea,
Like men at peace on a peaceful shore.”

MERRILL BURR SANDS.

Last scene of all.

As many men grown old and knowing the sure approach of death act with more kindness towards their relatives, friends and acquaintances, so we, in Senior year, knowing the sure parting that comes soon, find the time only too short for fellow-feeling and friendship. We are about to make the great plunge—"We are going away, but before we go, we have something to say" to each other. We say it in Senior year. It is only then we can say it. It is only in Senior year that the rest from struggle begins for most of us. It may be a flaw in our system that true democracy cannot exist until three years have passed, but more than likely the flaw is in us and the complaint could be made under any system. All we know is that there is good feeling and democracy in Senior year, and that the last college year is the best of college life. We have felt this year a little inclined to cease troubling about the problems which we have not solved. We have tried to do our duty, but, after the first few months of Senior year, surely we had done our share. Now, especially that the year is nearly over, we feel that we deserve a little rest—a little loafing—and much of hearty fellowship.

Every class, of course, has the inviolable right to think itself the best that ever existed. There is no use in disputing this point; the "grand old class" idea is as firmly lodged in the soul of every true Yale man as a fossil Brachiopod or any other pod in its surrounding rock. When this conviction is backed up by facts, it is a noble spirit; in other cases, it is merely amusing. Of course, in the class of 1905, such spirit was altogether pitiable. We should be the last to sneer at them for it; we extend our sympathy instead. Now, in our case,—

Well if there are any doubts, consider first the football season last fall. The prospects were decidedly blue; all the papers said so. In spite of this, Shevlin went right ahead with the work, until Yale had one of, if not the most powerful offensive teams ever seen on the gridiron. Every opponent met defeat and Yale's clear title to the championship was established by the Princeton game, twenty-three to four, and the Harvard game six to nothing. Everything was blue then, too. Our Senior representation—Flinn, Hoyt, P. C. Smith, Stevenson, Turner (dare we say Erwin?) and Shevlin—must be given the main credit for the victory; but the conscientious work of Rockwell must not be forgotten. His work was a great factor of the team's success. The team, for its wonderful spirit and success, and the captain for his leadership of such a team, we shall be proud to remember. The excellent work of the cheer leaders, B. D. Smith, A. W. Andrews and Dousman, must not be left unnoticed.

In the other branches of athletics we have been, or will be, well represented this year. In hockey Yale barely lost the championship to Harvard. Captain Flinn, Marcus and Rowland were the 1906 representatives on the team. Three of this year's basket-ball team,—Captain Rockwell, Humpstone and E. A. Anderson—are of our class. But the less said about a painful subject, the better. Let us not open a healed wound. Though at the time of the present writing the track meets, baseball games and boat races are yet to be, we hope for the best, and feel sure 1906 will do its part. In tennis, Field has upheld the honor of the class. He and his partner were runners-up in the championship doubles.

In other lines may be mentioned the Christmas trip of the musical clubs which, this year, was remarkably successful. Stevenson's management was responsible for the large surplus—a consummation devoutly to be wished, but rarely attained. Sprague, Arms, Turner, Walcott, A. W. Andrews, Kocherspurger, Mills, Brinsmade, McGee, Ely and Dickinson were the 1906 members of the Glee Club, and Dustin, Banks, Field, Bruce, W. D. Harris and Westcott of the Mandolin and Banjo Clubs.

The Pundits have been, perhaps, more active than usual this year. Under their auspices, Dr. Root gave a lecture on the preceptorial system at Princeton, and Professor Phelps, on March 6, the centennial anniversary of the birth of Mrs. Browning, delivered a lecture on the life and work of the great poetess. In debating, there is no 1906 representative, that is, on the team which is to meet Harvard. Bergh is one of the alternates and narrowly missed a position on the team. Phi Beta Kappa has made a good move in creating a committee of information to meet personally all men who have a reasonable chance of election to the society. It is hoped by explaining the aims of Phi Beta Kappa and the benefits to be derived from it, that scholarship will be improved in the college. Professor Wheeler delivered again his famous Waterloo lecture under the auspices of the society.

The play to be given by the Dramatic Association is Shakespeare's Henry IV, Part I. The Seniors in the cast are Van Tassel, Brooks, Wescott, Prendergast, and LaVie. Stevenson is president of the Association and I. S. Hall is manager. Brinsmade is stage manager. The plays given by Le Cercle Français this year were "Le Baron de Fourchevif" and "L'Avocat Patelin." Their performance on January 20th was a decided success. Before ending this paragraph, the unusual bustle and enthusiasm of the whist team must be mentioned, and what an inspiration it is to see the gigantic Dunlap and the redoubtable Koehler leading off with their lefts.

The prosperity of the magazines this year has been remarkable, at least in a financial way. The Lit. under the masterly management of Bruce has even surpassed the Courant in pages of advertisement, which is saying a great deal when Greene's business energy is considered. The proposition to bind the ads. under a separate cover has been indignantly rejected by both magazines. The Lit.'s competition for business manager, a sixth place on the board without the honor of Chi Delta Theta, was started under the régime of the nineteen-six board and has proved a success. In literary merit, the Lit. has maintained its usual excellence. The Chi Delta Theta competition was fair; triangles were awarded to Clarke and Wescott. The proper literary reputation for logical action was maintained by Newberry. On one occasion, being under some financial strain, he sold a new twelve dollar set of books at Judd's for six dollars. On the way to the door with his treasure, he was struck with the beauty of an eight-dollar set, which he purchased, paid for, and went out smiling. The Courant has made a decided improvement in interest and style over last year. The glories of the News should not be forgotten; its column "The World at Large," its increased size, its conscious and unconscious humor and its literary merit are greatly appreciated. The nineteen-six board has really done a great work. The Record, it is alleged, has been very good this year.

The elections of class officers and committees were held in the austere and dignified manner which has been a characteristic of our class in its seniority. The meetings opened with restrained and almost religious cheers for chairman Wilson, after which the solemn strains of "King, King," vibrated musically through the meeting room. In such a serious procedure were our officers chosen. Fowler was elected Secretary; Wallis, Poet; Perrin, Orator. The Class Day Committee is composed of Dustin (chairman), Borden, Chase, Moorhead and E. White. The sparkling McClintock was elected Historian. MacKay, for his gastronomic powers, was chosen chairman of the Supper Committee, with Sturges, Hall, Flinn and Gorham for assistants. The Triennial Committee is Perrin (chairman), Cowles, Flanders, Brinsmade and Grant. The class showed its discriminating ability in electing Ely (chairman), Shevlin and Clarke to the Cup Committee. The Ivy Committee is Rockwell (chairman), Wilson and Magee; the Cap and Gown Committee, Eddy (chairman), Goodyear, and Cooke; the Picture Committee, McGee, Thatcher and Fusser Gurley. Later the Academic Seniors on the Senior Prom. Committee were elected as follows: Rockwell (chairman), Andrews, Flanders, Dustin, Goodyear, Gregory and Dousman.

Of new works accomplished or attempted this year by the class of nineteen-six, the organization of college city government clubs and their amalgamation in one central body is the most important. This is a movement which seems sure of good results,—far-reaching results. A great deal of credit is due to the men who have made the movement a success. The trip to Washington made by the delegates of the different colleges, and the cordial and informal reception tendered them by President Roosevelt, gave a stimulus to the work of the clubs. Moorhead, Wilson and Dodge were the Seniors who took the trip. Moorhead's election to the presidency of the united clubs was a fitting acknowledgment of his work in the movement. Of the works unfinished but attempted by our class this year, the proposed system of Freshman clubs is the most important, and if carried out, the most beneficial. In brief, it was proposed that the whole Freshman class should make up one club which should be divided into four smaller clubs. The smaller clubs were to have separate meeting rooms, while for the whole organization there was to be a main hall with a stage at one end. A restaurant, and billiard and pool tables, were also intended. The club rooms were to be in the basement of Dwight Hall, but this plan was found impracticable. At present nothing is being done, but it is hoped that in the near future these plans will be carried out. The good effects that would follow from organization proposed are manifest.

In closing a history of Senior year it may be proper to cast a glance toward the future. We look on ourselves while undergraduates as more truly Yale men than we shall be in the future. We naturally think now that when college life ends we lose in considerable degree our purity of Yaleness—become somewhat less Yale men. The outside world does not think so. When we leave here, our external influence as Yale men begins. We become Yale's representatives at the courts of the world. Yale will be judged by us. If we love our college, we must maintain her fair name by our lives. Let us think of ourselves after graduation as more Yale men than ever, men exerting an influence from Yale and for Yale. Let us make our influence the more felt by keeping ever with us the true Yale spirit of determination, but determination regulated by honor and fair dealing toward all men.

NECROLOGY

Stanleigh Winslow Macgurn was born in Toronto, Canada, on October 27, 1884, the son of Foster Macgurn, an insurance agent, and Fannie (Raiford) Macgurn. His preparation was at Detroit Grammar and High Schools, Hyde Park High School, Chicago, and at Thacher School. Macgurn's residence when he entered Yale was Oswego, N. Y., and at the time of his death it was Milwaukee, Wis. In Freshman year he roomed at 192 York Street and 333 York Street, in Sophomore year with H. L. Ward at 172 Farnam, and in Junior year with Ward and J. L. Fawley at 256 Lawrance. Macgurn was active in religious work, being a member of the Oak Street Boys' Club Committee Freshman year. He sang second bass on the Freshman Glee Club. During the fall term of Sophomore year he engaged in the News Competition. His Junior appointment was a Second Colloquy. In December of Junior year he was taken sick with appendicitis, and died at the Yale Infirmary after a very brief illness, on December 12, 1904.

His death came as a great shock to his classmates, and those who knew him best realized how clean and sincere a life had gone out. For in Stanleigh Macgurn were sterling qualities of character, zeal for the right, the impulses of praiseworthy purpose, a great desire to play a man's part in his college and in the world. Life was sweet to him. By his death our class and all Yale have been made poorer.

Necrology.

In these last days of our life as undergraduates, our thoughts instinctively turn back to one whose sudden death in Freshman year deprived us of a beloved comrade. Andrew Parker succumbed to a severe attack of appendicitis on July 9, 1903, at Mifflintown, Pa. Mifflintown had for some years been the summer home of the family, and there Andrew was born February 1, 1883, to Edmund Southard Parker, president of the National Metropolitan Citizens Bank of Washington, D. C., and Mary Isabelle (Wilson) Parker.

After three years at Andover he completed his preparation for college at Hotchkiss. It was at school that many of us had the privilege and distinction of his friendship. He added to a noble, cheerful, upright character the most engaging personality. Open-hearted, sympathetic, manly and generous, he won and held the warm friendship of all with whom he came in contact. He was loved for his clean, wholesome nature; admired for his knowledge of men and his rare gift of leadership.

It was not given that he should graduate with us, but when, in time to come, we look upon our college days, and live over again its happy experiences, there will stand out among the familiar scenes the face of one whose memory will live to be an enduring inspiration.

BIOGRAPHY

Nineteen Hundred Six was born in New Haven, Conn., on September 28, 1902, the son of Elihu Yale, a teacher, and of Brave Mother Yale. Six was prepared for college at various preparatory schools and everywhere took an active interest in literature, debating, athletics, and "Codille" talk. Upon entering college he roamed all over York Street, and in Sophomore year The Fence was his home. In Junior year he spent his time on Berkeley Oval. In Senior year Six wound his top (and sometimes spun it) in Vanderbilt Court. Nineteen Six will next year enter business of cosmopolitan nature, interesting himself, at the same time, in professional and literary work. His home address is Yale, New Haven. His telegraphic address, 1906.

On the graduation of the Class the average age will be 22 years, 10 months and 6 days, or for the sake of those who are taking the course in statistics, it will be exactly 22 years, 10 months, 5 days, 14 hours, 24 minutes and 10 seconds. This average compares very favorably with other classes. It is 2 months and 5 days less than the average of the Class of 1905, and we must of course allow for the increase of average caused by the number of men who joined our Class in Senior year, having already graduated from other institutions. 1906 is really a heavy-weight Class, although the average falls somewhat below 1905. From the rope-pulling contest in our Sophomore year we may deduce the fact that in more than one sense "to the losers belong the pounds," for the average weight of 1905 was  $150\frac{1}{4}$ , while our Class weighs in at  $148\frac{3}{4}$ . The average height is 5 feet  $9\frac{1}{2}$  inches, an increase of  $\frac{1}{2}$  an inch over that of the Class of 1905. Of course we of the Class of 1906, imbued with the "Grand Old Class" idea of which Friend Wallis speaks (cf. page 36), dislike to draw this constant comparison, but for statistical information it is necessary. The figures for the Class of 1904 at graduation were, 22 years, 1 month and 21 days, and in weight  $147\frac{1}{4}$  pounds. The average height was 5 feet  $7\frac{1}{2}$  inches. Now comparing 1906 with the last two graduating classes, we note that our age average is higher than 1904 and lower than 1905. We out-weigh 1904 by a little over a pound, but fall below the average of last year's class. We are however a tall race and goodly, for we are taller by 2 inches than 1904 and 1905 gives way to us by  $\frac{1}{2}$  an inch.

Hughes, 45 years, 5 months and 5 days, is the oldest, and Gow, 19 years, 9 months and 16 days, is the youngster of the Class. Sixteen men in the Class are not yet old enough to vote, while three have passed their thirtieth birthdays. In 1905 twenty graduated under 21 years and six men were over 30 years of age.

The heavy weights of the Class are Robertson and P. C. Smith, each claiming 222 pounds. Kent and Heaton are tied for second place with 220. Johnnie Dunlap, with his 6 feet  $4\frac{1}{2}$  inches, could easily look down into the Herd and see how the Devil got into it. Downing, 6 feet 4 inches, has only an inch the advantage of Dimock, so that they too are heard from. George and Lou Dole are the shortest men in the Class with 5 feet  $2\frac{3}{4}$  inches and 5 feet  $3\frac{1}{2}$  inches to their credit, respectively. A la the Yale News, these two brothers of Connecticut Hall are far from being sufficiently tall, yet college men both far and near do fear these wrestling brothers dear. A. H. Clark and W. G. Robinson put in their claim for shortest men in the Class,—but the muse of the News refuses their views.

Three-hundred and sixty men have been enrolled with the Class. Two, Andrew Parker, son of E. Southard Parker, and Stanleigh Winslow Macgurn, son of Foster Macgurn, have been taken from us by death. Fifteen men have joined other classes in the University, as follows: C. G. Curtis, B. P. Hamlin, W. C. Johnson, H. R. Kellogg, T. P. Dixon, A. G. Erwin, H. H. Whittaker, J. L. Mitchell, T. G. Peck, J. A. Vietor and B. D. York, all of whom are in the Academic Department; A. Fulton, G. B. Leggett and N. B. Mayo, who are in the Scientific School, and M. N. Nahigan in the Medical School. Forty left college before Senior year to represent 1906 in the bigger world.

Of the 303 men of the Class now in college, 227 are church members, distributed among the various denominations as follows: Episcopal 70, Presbyterian 48, Congregational 44, Roman Catholic 15, Baptist 14, Methodist 13, Methodist Episcopal 4, Methodist Society 3, Disciples 3, New Jerusalem 2, Cumberland Presbyterian 2, and Universalist, Evangelical, Union, United Brethren, United Presbyterian, Missionary Baptist, Lutheran, First Baptist, each 1.

Two hundred and eight men in the Class have decided, after four years, that compulsory Chapel is good, while seven think that it should be abolished. The general opinion of the Class is that some compulsory Sunday service is necessary, and the majority are in favor of the Chapel service; some for its brevity, but the greater number because of a real interest in the Chapel preachers. The results for the favorite Chapel preacher are Speer 101, Abbott 35, Rainsford 25, Hadley 24, Mott 17. About a third of the Class have engaged in some religious work, either in the college or at clubs where the main work is done by college men. Yale Hall, the Bethany Mission, the Oak Street Boys' Club and other organizations of similar nature, have had the help of many men in the Class.

We will leave the votes which W. H. Harris secured for greatest grind (12 in number), to the silent consideration of Harris and the rest of the Class. We are surprised at the lack of support which Harris received from his fellow members in "Codille." Surely some bolted, who must ever after regret their disloyalty.

Barton is said to be the nerviest man in the Class, getting 69 votes; McClintock coming second with 26. Barton is also voted the most eccentric with 38 votes to 27 for Markoe. John Magee received 52 votes as the most to be admired, and O'Brien is thought by 28 to be the Class Pride. Shevlin (141) and Perrin (28) have done most for Yale. John Stevenson and H. Goodwin are the beauties of the Class, with 55 and 40 votes, respectively. Bruce Smith easily is the most popular man, with 128 votes. Moorhead received 27. McClintock's witticisms impressed 120, while Wurts' victims number only 25. Speaking again of good looks, Ely is voted the handsomest with 53 votes; Stevenson received 43. Moorhead and Van Tassel are looked upon as most likely to succeed with 51 and 33 votes, respectively. McClintock is certainly the most original, with 80 votes; W. H. Harris and Markoe each receiving 14. Hoyt is thought the greatest social light by 111 of the Class; Bruce Smith scored 46. Shevlin is the best all-round athlete with 268 votes. Bruce (73) and J. Stevenson (49) are the most versatile men in the Class. Gurley, 37 votes, is easily the biggest fusser; Mills being second with 15. Sands (59) and McClintock (26) are fair at bluffing.. Whitcomb (133) is the best dressed man in the Class; the other votes are scattered. Frank Wilson and Hugh Diller are conspicuous for their meekness, receiving 55 and 47 votes, respectively. Hannahs' class nickname was confirmed by 66 men, who speak of him as "Windy Hannahs," while Sands was second with 36 votes. MacLane received 118 votes for "Greatest Grind," leaving Gibson far behind with only 45. Dimock is the brightest man in the Class, 67 votes to 45 for Bruce. MacKay received 107 votes for the laziest, in spite of his campaign work in behalf of P. C. Smith, who received 20. Smith pulled up for noisiest, however, and secured 45, while Twichell's Codille talk captured 43 votes; Smith's talk is evidently "good natured," though, for he secured 51 votes; Heaton and MacKay were tied for second with 17 votes. Banks is the hardest worker (31); Van Tassel second (28). Van Tassel (48) and Cowles (28) are the most energetic men in the Class. It is difficult to say who is the most scholarly, since Bruce with 50 votes is only a small margin ahead of Gow and Dimock, who are tied for second with 45 votes each.

Of the 253 men in the Class who use tobacco, 48 claim Bull Durham as their favorite. One-hundred and fifty-one men in the Class admit the use of drinks other than water, although water was the favorite, receiving 76 votes, beer (34) was second while whiskey had a hard time with all temperance drinks. In the mix-up they each secured 18 votes. Twenty-eight men in the Class were undecided as to whether wine or milk should strengthen man's heart, the votes being evenly divided.

For the most popular college publication the following votes are recorded: News, 163; Record, 50; the Lit., 16; while for the most valuable the News received 173 votes, the Lit. 46, and the Record 3. Two-hundred and nine men in the Class would prefer to wear a Phi Beta Kappa key rather than a Lit. Triangle (37 votes) or a News badge, which was considered by 35 men to be most desirable.

The Dining Hall has accommodated 252 of the Class at some time during the course, the majority of whom say that it is satisfactory. The minority vary from downright disapproval to a tolerance "because of the great number of men served."

Princeton (143), Harvard (52) and Williams (21) are the favorite colleges next to Yale. Vassar, Smith and Wellesley modestly step forward with 12, 9 and 4 votes, respectively.

Our choice of professors reads as follows: Pleasantest Professor—W. L. Phelps (60), Phillips (23), J. C. Adams (15), W. B. Bailey (15); Brightest—W. L. Phelps (101), Lewis (29), Kreider (25); Favorite—W. L. Phelps (60), Lewis (55); Most Polished—Lewis (161), Phelps (27); Best Teacher—Kreider (123); Best Lecturer—Wheeler (60), Lewis (60).

The Class considers Senior year the brightest of these college years, or at least 198 men present the majority opinion. The lack of firm organization of "Codille" in our more youthful days may possibly account for the 127 votes which are checked up against Freshman year as the most disagreeable of our college course. The fact that 150 men voted Freshman year the hardest may account for that year being voted the most disagreeable. This is logically followed out when we note that 121 vote Senior year to be the easiest, Junior year following with 72 votes. Notwithstanding the fact that Junior and Senior years are considered easier than the struggle of our first days at Yale, we see that as upper classmen we come to a more real understanding of the courses offered us, and their value. Physics and American Social Conditions are considered the most valuable electives with 34 votes each. Twenty-nine men have obtained more from their English courses, 28 consider Economics as most valuable, and following these votes come Law courses (20), History (18). Physics with 53, and American Social Conditions and the Course in Economics, each with 46 votes, are considered by the Class the most practical electives. The courses in Law received 36 votes. There seems to have been a general understanding that since Physics received 53 votes for the most practical elective, it must also be the most difficult, at least the Class so voted. Mathematics (75), Greek (32) and Latin (24), are the hardest of the required studies. Where the Class has found the path easy is not at all in doubt: History (54) and the course in Biblical Literature (20) have been the easiest targets which the Faculty have put up for our Class. Of the courses that the Faculty have required us to take, English (66) and French (28) have taken the least of our time.

The tastes of the Class vary, but we must remember "De gustibus non disputandum," and so when we find the votes for favorite courses scattered over most all the elective pamphlet, we can merely list them as far as possible. Nineteenth Century Poets (31), Tennyson and Browning (29), Professor Lewis' course in Shakespeare (21), American Social Conditions (20).

There are 115 men in the Class who think that we should follow the example of Harvard and make Greek an absolutely elective course.

A total of 252 consented to mention their political leanings, distributed as follows: Republican, 177; Democratic, 34; Independent, 25; Mugwump, 10; Prohibitionist, 5; Socialist, 1.

At the end of a four years' college course, especially when that college is Yale, it is interesting to us who are about to graduate, and possibly to those in the classes under us, to see what each of three hundred men obtains from such a course. The question arises even in our Freshman year, as to whether scholarship, close application to study, and some digging and grinding, are worth more to the man than the associations, the friends and the broadening of a college education. At the beginning of Freshman year possibly each one of us made a choice as to which path he considered the surest to success, not financially or socially speaking, but using the word success in its greater meaning, the successful effect of our work on ourselves. For the most valuable thing obtained from the college course, we find that 160 votes show that the friends and general associations are of most value. Twenty-five state definitely that they have obtained a wider knowledge of men, while eleven have gained self-reliance. We find that eighteen of the Class consider that the educational advantages have been the greatest help.

As we find that the acquaintances and friendships made are thought to have been the most valuable effect of our four years at Yale, naturally we find also that democracy and good fellowship lead in the vote for "the most prominent characteristics" of the Class. We can safely count the 4 votes for "Codille" as being a sub-heading for good fellowship. Athletic ability received 20 votes, while 9 men believe that the high morals of the Class make up its claim to prominence.

THE TRUTH ABOUT THE CLASS VOTE.

Oh help me, Muse, to sing a ditty
Of things which happened in this city,
Yclept by some to be a town
(Though known to be of great renown) !
I call it town or city either
Because it makes no difference neither.
Its railroad-map name is Noo Haven,
But folks what know, know that its Yalen.
Well, anyhow, in this old College,
Most noted for Sol'monic knowledge,
There wus a Class, called Nawty-Six,
Close on to all the learned tricks,—
Nose on the trail and tail vibrating,
It had a supra-classic rating.
Its nick-name was Pheu Betta Kribba,
Which means, "Oi flunko niver, niver!"
One day this Class was all assembled
(Whereat the Dean and all Profs. trembled!)
To vote a few on those, by name
Most noted of the Class's fame.
And mark you, now, since I was there,—
Why I was made the Secretaire!
And in a manner sage and hoary
I took it down this way, be gory:
Beedee Smith Most Popular's
When quoting Homeric copulars,
Or else when arguing profane
Dutch triplets with our Grind MacLane.
And now for Deacons the Class voted
And chose the holiest-most-noted;
Hank Damon, H. F. Damon, both fine laymen,
And Henry Damon and Hen Damon.
Then Warner, telephonic pale,
Was voted as "Dunned Most for Yale."
Sands was the Most to be admired:—
Th' Dean only knows why he's not fired!
Alf Thom, inexorable Kusser,
Of course was voted the Class Fusser;
But some maintained, as worsen still,
That Erwin was Most Versatile.
Then Windy Hannahs did attest
There was but one the Wittiest,—
His friend, Stew Glazier, took first place
Because he'd such a funny face.

The Class then nobly did its duty
 And voted Terry Tileston, Beauty,
 Though someone slanderingly attainted
 And claimed he'd heard that Terry painted.
 Then Dimock was proclaimed the Brightest
 Because he is by no means lightest,
 Though Higgins laid a claim to it
 Because, said he, "I'm mostly lit";
 Right here, John Greely threw a fit,
 Crying, "Heavens, Hig! Why I'm the Lit!"
 With further satire the Class voted
 (And thereat one and all they hooted).
 Most Energetic was Van Tassel
 Who quaffs by hogsheads Brooklyn* wassail.
 Ralph Wescott, Barton, and Markoe
 Together make the Class's Zoo:
 For most Eccentric all three ran
 And Barton proved the craziest man.
 Ralph and Markoe were minor factors;
 Though both tried hard, they were but actors.
 Frank Wilson was the Meekest Man (?)
 ('Tis strange with his bold cheeks of tan!):
 This post—with grace Riggs would embue it,
 Yet was so meek that no one knew it.
 For Athlete, Hunt and Shev, a-race,
 Strained hard and Shevlin won first place.
 Phil's doctor said he had "heart-fluttering"
 Caused by his long and frequent stuttering;
 Though all know well he could say "thistle"
 If he would only wet his whistle.
 Our favorite Pome, Rushing the Bar,
 My Lord T. wrote t' be popular:
 But Dunlap's "gizzard was unstirred"—
 For poems he is just the bird!
 Lord T. and Wallis are not in it
 When J. G. thrums his lyric spinnet.
 When asked its favorite drink, the Class
 For very shame cried out "Alas!"
 And Deacon Damon rose to say
 "Sweet Gentles, come now, let us spray!"
 Oh shame the thought! In red September
 Of Freshman year, you will remember,
 Unless you've mental aberration,
 We took our pledge from Carrie Nation.
 And last we chose our Favorite Song,
 "Oh let me grind the whole day long!"

S. M. HARRINGTON.

FINANCIAL

Of the ninety-five men who have engaged in some remunerative work to aid them in obtaining a college education, twenty-four have entirely paid their expenses, while of the remaining seventy-one a third have paid more than a half of the cost for the four years. The many different ways of earning money may well be listed as definitely showing that the ambition, and energy, of the college man is very much alive. Subscription work for various papers, editing of papers, acting as motormen on street railways, organ and piano playing, tutoring and teaching, canvassing of various kinds, acting as insurance agent, hotel clerk, waiting on table, surveying, tending furnace, shoveling snow, reporting for newspapers, farming, and driving delivery wagons are some of those mentioned. One man in the Class, during one year of college, tended furnace, shoveled snow, reported for newspaper and waited on table. The highest amount spent by any one member of the Class during a college year was $7,550, the lowest $100. It might be interesting to note here that the man spending the first amount received no appointment when Junior Scholarship Appointments were announced. The man whose item was $100 for the year received a First Colloquy. One hundred and thirteen men in the Class averaged over $1,000 a year, that is 50 per cent. of the men who estimated their expenses. Thirty-eight men or 16 per cent. averaged under $500 a year.

In tabulating the amounts spent it may be more interesting to compare the averages distinguishing between the various Junior Appointments, that is, the amounts spent by those men receiving high appointments as compared with the yearly cost of living to those men who received the lower appointments. Before giving such a table it may be mentioned that the greatest total expense for the four years was $17,750 (from a man who received no Junior Appointment) and the lowest $550 (a First Colloquy Appointment man).

Two hundred and twenty-six men handed in estimates of their expenses for the four years, and they are divided among the appointments as follows:

No. of Men	Appointment	Freshmen	Sophomore	Junior	Senior
10	Phil. Oration . . . . .	$ 760.00	$ 773.00	$ 680.00	$ 775.00
15	High Oration . . . . .	929.00	961.00	1,001.00	1,085.00
14	Oration . . . . .	673.00	754.00	895.00	843.00
11	Dissertation . . . . .	799.00	822.00	923.00	920.00
13	First Dispute . . . . .	688.00	767.00	785.00	877.00
15	Second Dispute . . . . .	927.00	913.00	923.00	1,075.00
27	First Colloquy . . . . .	976.00	1,022.00	1,151.00	1,158.00
26	Second Colloquy . . . . .	1,108.00	1,206.00	1,321.00	1,341.00
95	No Appointment . . . . .	1,000.00	1,065.00	1,162.00	1,212.00
<hr/>		<hr/>
226	Average . . . . .	$942.00	$996.00	$1,081.00	$1,127.00

Upon looking over these figures it may be seen that in each case the highest amount spent is in the accounts of the twenty-six men who received a Second Colloquy Appointment. The next highest amounts are those of the men who received no Junior Appointment. If we take the averages for the four years, we find that of the Philosophical Orations to be $731 a year, and the average for the lowest appointment men $1,244. An average yearly expense table for the four years would read as follows:

No. of Men	Appointment	Average
26	Second Colloquy . . . . .	$1,244.00
95	No Junior Appointment . . . . .	1,110.00
27	First Colloquy . . . . .	1,078.00
15	High Oration . . . . .	994.00
15	Second Dispute . . . . .	960.00
11	Dissertation . . . . .	866.00
14	Oration . . . . .	791.00
13	First Dispute . . . . .	779.00
10	Philosophical Oration . . . . .	731.00
<hr/>		<hr/>
226	Average . . . . .	$1,037.00

It may be that the men who are not inclined to study take more time for amusement and pleasure; it may possibly be that the men who cannot afford frequent theatres are more or less forced to their books.

The average by years is lower than the average expense of the Class of 1905. The four years average of $4,146 is lower than the four years average either of the Class of 1905 ($4,270), or the Class of 1904 ($4,369). These figures show that Yale is not becoming a rich man's college, and we may well consider this decrease as a healthy symptom.
